SENATE ADOPTS INDUSTRIAL MEASURE

MORGAN HITS EXPOSURE OF FAVORED LIST

SENATE ROUNDS OUT INVESTIGATION OF FIRM

BY WILLIAM L. BEALE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 9 (AP)—J. P. Morgan's parting shot tonight at his senate investigators was a vigorous condemnation of the publicity given selected client lists, which he said resulted in "an unwarranted criticism of our customers."

"This unjust criticism we feel deeply," said a statement filed by the head of the banking house at the close of three weeks of hearings.

Just a bit earlier, the financier had watched another of the lists which have caused such official reverberations placed into the banking committee's record. It showed bargain-price sales of Johns Manville stock in June, 1927, to Morgan and company's official family at one price and to prominent outsiders at $10 higher.

Hearings Are Ended

Again included were such names as William H. Woodin, Norman H. Davis, Owen D. Young and John J. Raskob. The sales were long before Woodin or Davis entered official life.

"We protested vigorously against the breach of what we have always assumed to be the confidential relationship of the banker and his customer," said Morgan and Company.

This printed document ended the present series of hearings on Morgan and Company affairs, conducted for the last several days in weather so hot as to become almost unbearable. But Thomas W. Lamont, partner, was told to prepare himself for certain questions next fall, and the committee will determine whether to summon officials of Kuhn, Loeb and Company and Dillon, Read and Company.

Last minute testimony also included a balance sheet of the Morgan house, prepared by certified accountants as of March 31. It showed that from December 31, 1932, total assets shrank from $424,708,095 to $317,837,290, deposits from $340,000,000 to $238,793,000 and government security holdings from $224,000,000 to $146,071,000.

Most of the long, humid day was devoted to questioning four Morgan partners—Thomas W. Lamont, Thomas S. Lamont, William Ewing and Harold Stanley—about stock transactions which showed losses deductable from taxable income.

Nor was the tax phase of the inquiry forgotten in Morgan's last statement. Earlier it was testified that all 20 Morgan partners paid no income tax in 1931 and 1932 and but $48,000 in 1930.

"The precise facts as to our payments of income taxes seem to have been misunderstood by a portion of the community," the firm said. "Since 1927 the partners of our firm have, as stated, paid upwards of $51,000,000 in income taxes. x x x In 1929 alone they were approximately $11,000,000.

"In the years 1930, '31 and

Macdonald Sullen in Jail Cell, Extradition To Michigan Opposed

Nashville, Tenn., June 9. (AP)—Balfe Macdonald, captured here after a nation-wide search, lounged sullenly in a jail cell tonight while attorneys prepared for possible legal skirmishes over his removal to Flint, Mich., where he is wanted on charges of slaying his mother.

The 17-year-old boy, regarded by former school masters as a "problem child," was questioned this afternoon but officials said he maintained his innocence. His 16-year-old "pal," William Terwilliger, also of Flint, declined to talk in two conversations with authorities.

Meanwhile, County Prosecutor A. J. Transue, of Genesee county, (Flint) arrived with a corps of officers and announced he would seek the youths' removal "as soon as possible."

"I think it won't be long," Transue said, "but until we get some of the legal tangles straightened out we can't tell."

Two potential obstacles to a speedy removal developed — one from pending federal charges against the youths and the other from a precautionary move by their attorneys to resist extradition.

Jack Norman, their lawyer, notified Governor Hill MacAlister removal would be resisted but later said this was a "precautionary estep" and possibly would not be followed up.

"I can't tell for certain, though, until their lawyers from Flint arrive," Norman asserted.

Because the youths are accused by federal officials of mailing extortion notes, it is possible that United States District Attorney A. V. McLane will not consent to their removal, but Transue said McLane "indicated" he would interpose no objection if they waive extradition.

COURT FIGHT LOOMS

Flint, Mich., June 9. (AP)—A heated court battle in behalf of youthful Balfe Macdonald, under arrest in Nashville, Tenn., with a companion was looked for tonight by Flint citizens who have watched with intense interest the progress of the nation-wide search for the "problem child" whose mother was slain here May 27.

Two attorneys were enroute to Nashville to look after the interests of young Macdonald and William Terwilliger, 16, who fled with Balfe from the Macdonald home here the day Mrs. Grace B. Macdonald, the mother, was found slain in her Crescent Drive home. They said they would assist the youths in fighting extradition.

The Flint attorneys, Clifford A. Bishop and Ralph M. Freeman, retained two Nashville lawyers by telephone as soon as word of Balfe's arrest on federal extortion charges was received. They said they ordered the attorneys to fight extradition until they could arrive at Nashville. After that, they declined to discuss their plans.

Before leaving here, Freeman said he had been advised by Jack Norman, Nashville attorney, that Balfe had denied making any statement to officials concerning trouble between himself and his mother on the day she was slain. Terwilliger, Freeman said Norman told him, denied flatly "making any statement at all." Previously he had been quoted as saying that Balfe admitted striking his mother during a quarrel, then taking $45 and driving away with Terwilliger in the Macdonald sports coupe.

Relatives of the youth, including his two sisters, Mrs. Janet Palmer and Gwenlaurie Macdonald, the latter a California college student, declined to comment on the plans should Balfe and his companion be returned to Flint.

MATTERN CAN'T BETTER RECORD

But Flier Continues in Effort to Establish First Solo Tour

Moscow, June 10 (Saturday) (AP)—Jimmie Mattern was speeding today toward Khabarovsk, jumping off place for the trans-Pacific leg of his round-the-world flight, after taking off at 1:50 a. m. Moscow time (5:50 p. m. Friday Eastern Standard Time) at Belove, Siberia.

The Texas aviator passed over Irkutsk, Siberia, at 2:30 a. m. Moscow time (6:30 p. m. Friday Eastern Standard Time). He was hopelessly behind the pace set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty when they hung up the world circling record of eight days, 15 hours and 51 minues in 1931.

Mattern, however, had made a quick recovery from a mishap in the air which almost cost him his life, and he was on his way to set up an enviable mark for the first solo flight around the globe.

Halting only once on the way to Beloye from Belovo, where overpokering fumes from a leaking gas line caused him to make a forced landing Wednesday, the airman made Rasniyarsk in fairly good time. He remained there only long enough to take on fuel and to make superficial repairs.

He had intended to stay in Krasnoqarsk long enough to rest and to have permanent repairs completed. On the landing at Belovo the tail was broken.

Continuing from Krasnoyarsk, he flew to Beloye, which is only 50 miles west of Irkutsk near the Manchurian border. Apparently he landed there as the Siberian night settled over the steppes rather than attempt the hazardous flight over Lake Baikal and the high mountains in that region in darkness.

No details came out of Siberia, either about the landing in Krasnoyarsk or in Beloye, but apparently the aviator was well recovered from the nauseous effects of the gas fumes and the plane was in good flying order.

An indicaton that he was trying to make up for lost time, despite the fact that he hardly has any chance now to beat the round-the-world record set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, was seen in the fact that he stayed in Krasnoyarsk only four hours and 25 minutes.

Unpaid Teachers Of Chicago Stage Parade And Riots

Chicago, June 9. (AP)—A nine blocks long parade of demonstrating unpaid Chicago school teachers, their pupils and parents, was punctuated by fist fights and brief disorders in the loop today.

Several persons were mauled and a few emerged with minor hurts. Police denied they had clubbed any of the demonstrators.

In a mass meeting following the demonstration, leaders called upon teachers to stage parades every Tuesday until they were paid their back salaries—now five and a half months overdue—in full.

The demonstration followed the closing of the schools for the summer vacation. They were closed two weeks early, mainly because of financial difficulties. Teachers are owed about $19,000,000.

Dredging Pay Scale Dispute Settled

Detroit, June 9. (AP)—Settlement of a wage dispute between bredge workers and owners was announced Friday by R. H. Goode, of the Dunbar and Sullivan Dredging company here. Goode said the dredge workers accepted a $15 a month reduction, which would place the salary of the lowest paid man at $132.50 a month, the scale moving upward to $242.50.

VETERANS AID CUT DEADLOCK FINALLY ENDS

BOTH SIDES YIELD AND ACCORD IS REACHED

BY CECIL B. DICKSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 9 (AP)—Modification of President Roosevelt's compromise proposal on veterans cuts was accepted today by Democratic house leaders and plans were made for substituting it tomorrow for the senate amendment to the independent offices appropriation bill.

Both sides yielded to reach the agreement after almost a week of negotiations.

Compromise Accepted

The veterans advocates in the house, working with house leaders, won on their point to limit reductions on service-connected and in presumptive cases to 25 percent. The president held to his principle of permitting the government to strike from the rolls presumptive cases, found not to be service connected.

The president yielded, however, to the requests of the house members for provisions for Spanish-American war veterans who are 55 or older.

The main points in the compromise, to be acted on tomorrow in the house, are:

No service-connected veteran shall receive a cut in compensation of more than 25 percent.

Veterans presumed to have disabilities or disease due to service are to remain on the rolls until October 31, although their present compensation is to be reduced 25 percent.

As many boards as necessary are to be created by the president to review the presumptive cases with a view to determining whether they are entitled to compensation.

Pensions for service-connected or presumptive case veterans widows and children to continue at rates in effect before the economy act was passed.

Veterans suffering from diseases contracted as a result of misconduct are to be eliminated from the rolls unless it is proven the disease was aggravated as a result of service.

Approval Is Expected

By issuing regulations the president is to make provision for Spanish-American war veterans of 55 or more, while the pensions for Spanish-American war veterans of 62 or more are to continue under present regulations, recently revised to provide increases.

The house will meet tomorrow at 10 o'clock E. S. T. to consider a rule under which the compromise will be substituted for the senate amendment.

Democratic leaders and members of the veterans special committee unanimously approved the compromise at a meeting of the steering committee and expressed confidence that the house also would adopt the proposal.

Only one hour of debate is to be allowed on the rule of procedure. Adoption of this will assure approval of the motion to be made by Chairman Buchanan of the appropriations committee to substitute the compromise for the senate amendment.

This compromise ends a revolt in congress that threatened to disrupt President Roosevelt's economy and budget balancing program.

The Connally amendment, inserted by the senate, limited reductions in service-connected and presumptive cases to 25 percent and was estimated to cost $170,000,000.

President Roosevelt last Sunday night delivered an ultimatum to Democratic house leaders that if the amendment were adopted new taxes would have to be raised.

Representative Goldsborough (D-Md.), chairman of the special veterans committee, said today President Roosevelt had informed his group that the compromise, variously estimated to cost between $60,000,000 and $80,000,000, would not necessitate the levying of new taxes.

Income Tax Returns Opened For Public

SHIFTING WINDS SPREAD RELIEF

Atlantic Coast Suffers Highest Temperatures of Recent Years

New York, June 9 (AP)—Shifting winds started to cool the sweltering east late today as the nation's death toll in the year's first excessive heat wave mounted above 100.

While the highest temperatures of recent years were being recorded along the Atlantic coast early in the afternoon, the middle west already had found relief.

A few hours later ocean breezes carried the mercury down a few degrees in coastal cities, but weather bureau officials warned that another change in the wind would bring even hotter weather.

Four deaths by drowning at Buffalo, N. Y., the death of a man at Bridgeport, Conn., and one at Philadelphia and other scattered fatalities were added to those suffered in the midland states earlier in the week.

A dozen prostrations were reported by police in New York, where the temperature at 1 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time) was 96 degrees, the highest since July 21, 1930.

Philadelphia's temperature was 97 at 1 p. m., 20 degrees above the maximum in Chicago, where a cool breeze was welcomed by the through attending the Century of Progress Exposition.

The forecast for the middle west tomorrow indicated warmer weather and a fair or partly cloudy day.

Joy and Sorrow—Baby Is Found

Joy and sorrow are mingled here at the climax of one of the nation's strangest baby abduction cases. FEAR SHORTAGE OF GOOD BOOZE

Early Repeal Action May Catch Distillers Unprepared

(Copyright 1933, By The Associated Press)
BY JAMES P. SELVAGE,
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 9 (AP)—The liberalized medicinal liquor regulations have faced the treasury with the possibility of a shortage in whiskey and officials are considering a proposal to speed up distillery production to meet the situation.

No specific reports have been received since the change in the medicinal liquor laws last month, but James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, said today preliminary surveys indicated there had been a severe drain upon the present stocks.

In addition, he said, if the prohibition amendment should be repealed, there was a possibility that it would be several years before American distilleries could begin to meet the demand.

Pointing to the pressure the administration has exerted for early ratification of the repeal substitute for the eighteenth amendment and the quest for additional revenue, Doran said:

"I can see nothing in the signs to indicate that repeal will not come during the winter."

"If it does we have a definite problem on our hands and I have recommended to the treasury that additional distilling be considered shortly."

At the treasury it was said the matter had not been inquired into thoroughly yet.

Last month, when modification of the medicinal liquor laws became effective, there were upward of 4,500,000 gallons of prewar spirits in warehouses, besides 6,000,000 gallons which will begin to mature in the fall.

The normal aging time fixed by the industrial alcohol bureau is four years.

Accused Robber Is Sought By Police

Paw Paw, Mich., June 9. (AP)—Search was under way here tonight for Charles Phelan, 23 named by Lethaniel Bronner, 19, bank robbery suspect, as the man who escaped in a gun battle here on Thursday night between Bronner and sheriff's deputies seeking the bandits who earlier in the day obtained $4,000 from the state bank of Brooklyn, Mich.

Bronner, who, deputies said, opened fire when they sought to question him and who was wounded three times is held as a suspect in the holdup. Fred Brown, president of the bank, has failed to identify him, but police said his car answered the rescription of the bandit automobile, and continued questioning him.

Phelan, named by Bronner as his companion, fled during the shooting. A county-wide search is under way. He was believed to be on foot, since Bronner's car was seized by officers when they found it parked on a bridge near here.

One of the largest shippers of cofial on the lakes, it was reported, has covered on a large block of tonnage at the same rate of last year—35 cents a ton to Duluth and 45 cents to Milwaukee.

FRANCE HINTS JUNE DEFAULT

Daladier Ignores Debt Question Before Chamber

Paris, June 9 (AP)—Another French default when the next war debt installment becomes due June 15 was strongly indicated today when Premier Daladier ignored the debt question while responding to queries concerning the French foreign policy in the chamber of deputies.

In another respect the session was notable. The premier forecast a speedy effort to put an end to the differences between France and Italy over the spoils of the World War which have existed for fourteen years.

Action Is Unlikely

Responding to Premier Mussolini's compliments over the recent initialling of the four-power European peace pact, M. Daladier expressed hope that the common interests of France and Italy would be adjusted.

At the conclusion of the premier's remarks the war debt question was injected in the session by Deputy Fourgeot, who favored payment of the $19,000,000 installment due the United States last December as a means of helping solve the economic crisis. The chamber received the deputy cooly.

Premier Daladier leaves Sunday for the world economic conference in London, and there is small possibility of any chamber action on the debts before that. (June 15 a $40,000,000 installment becomes due the French government must have the approval of the chamber before paying it.)

Reitering France's determination to stay on the gold standard, M. Daladier declared that nations which have left gold ought to agree to currency stabilization.

He advocated a policy of collaboration with other nations, explaining that France had initialled the four-power peace pact in the conviction that the agreement furthered French interest in peace. No longer, the premier said, is there a question of the rearmament of Germany.

The government presented two bills asking special tariff and surtax powers—a move interpreted as designed to strengthen France's bargaining position at London.

DOG RACE BILL BEFORE SENATE

Committee Provides for Local Option, Reports Jarvis Measure

Lansing, June 9 (AP)—The legislative dog racing bill, storm center of lobbying charges, emerged to the floor of the senate today.

By a vote of four to three, the state affairs committee reported favorably the Jarvis bill, previously passed by the house, legalizing horse and other forms of racing. Senators Kulp, Case, Foster and Wilkowski voted to release the measure while Senators Rott, Flynn and Heidkamp were lined up against it.

To soften the sting of charges against dog races within the last few weeks, the committee adopted an amendment offered by Senator Leon D. Case, Democrat, Watervliet, making the sport subject to local option. Under the amendment, any county could have a referendum on permitting dog races once in four years on initiatory petitions signed by 25 percent of the voters.

Fitzsimmons-Sponsored

Another amendment was attached by the committee, likewise, offered by Senator Case, increasing the daily horse racing fee in the metropolitan are from $1,500 to $2,000.

With dog races labeled in many quarters as a "racket," the bill will not go through the senate without spectacular fight. The bill bears the personal sponsorship of Floyd Fitzsimmons, Benton Harbor, former fight promoter.

Should it pass the senate, it must return to the house for concurrence in amendments. Opponents of the bill claim they have gained votes since the house lobbying committee began its investigation.

The Jarvis bill legalizes auction pool, pari-mutuel, and certificate methods of betting at the races. Track licenses would retain 8½ percent and "the breaks" with the latter not exceeding five cents on the dollar.

The proposed act would be under the administration of the state administrative board. Track owners would be required to pay a $1,000 license fee to the state.

Daily fees would be $2,000 for horse racing in or within 25 miles of a county with a million population, and $500 for other counties of the state. The harness and dog racing fees would be $500 in metropolitan areas and $150 in other counties. Any track operated in Wayne county exclusively for harness racing would pay daily fees of only $25.

Revenues from the measure would go into the general fund of the state and be used to promote fairs.

Legislature Sets Friday, June 16 As Adjournment Date

Lansing, Mich., June 9 (AP)—The state legislature tonight set Friday, June 16, as the date for adjournment. The step means that all bills not passed in the house of origin in the session beginning at midnight tonight, will die.

The house passed and sent to the senate the Donnelly bill permitting establishment of mutual savings banks in Michigan. Under the proposed plan depositors would replace stockholders and share equally in profits and losses. The measure is similar to mutual banking laws in force in a number of eastern states. It is understood to have the backing of the governor and Banking Commissioner Rudolph E. Reichert.

The house state affairs committee reported favorably a substitute bill proposing the abolition of the public utilities commission and substitution of a three man body to be appointed by the governor, replacing the present five members.

ADJOURNMENT TODAY AIM OF CONGRESSMEN

DEMOCRATIC FORCES REJECT PROPOSED SALES TAX

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 9 (AP)—Forming an impenetrable cordon around the major provisions of the industrial bill, the Democratic majority brought the administration's business recovery measure through the senate tonight in virtually the same form as it had come to the floor.

Driving back amendment after amendment, the administration forces marched straight ahead to the final vote which sent the bill back to the house for agreement to amendments. The bill is the last major measure of the president's special session program.

Final Vote Was 57-24

There was hope tonight as the senate wound up its long day and night of work that the extra session might be brought to a close by tomorrow.

The whirlwind finish at the end of more than a twelve hour session gave a final vote for the bill of 57 ayes to 24 against, virtually the same count by which the senate only an hour before had rejected the sales tax as a method of raising the necessary funds to finance the $3,300,000,000 public works section.

Another key section of the bill provides for the regulation of industry through trade agreements to be worked out by the majority of the plants in an industry, with various committees of labor and industry and the government to pass upon varying phases of the codes.

These would cover working hours, prices and output, with the president to have the authority to license those branches of the industry that fail to conform to the agreements worked out by the majority.

The greatest changes in the long day and night session came as the senate bore down into the taxing section. In rapid succession it voted for throwing income tax returns open to public inspection and then lifted the exemption that thus far has held tax-free the income from securities of the federal, state and municipal governments.

As the measure went back to the house, one of the principal differences in the form in which is came from that branch lay in the taxation provisions. The house had voted to raise the rates on income, in addition to lifting the present levies on gasoline.

How They Voted

Voicing the belief that industry should bear a greater part of the burden for financing the activities of the measure, Chariman Harrison of the senate finance committee obtained agreement to a plan for putting additional taxes on corporations.

The vote by which the bill finally passed was:

Republicans for: Capper, Cutting, Frazier, Johnson, LaFollette, McNary, Norris, Nye, Robinson (Ind.),

J. P. Morgan, in a final statement to the senate banking investigators, defended his selected clients list as good business and criticized publication of the names.

The house approved the $2,000,000,000 home loan mortgage bill in its final form, leaving only a senate vote necessary.

The house and senate approved the administration's railroad reorganization plan, suspending anti trust laws, finishing congressional action.

End of the White House controversy over veterans' compensation appeared near to house leaders as President Roosevelt promised to take care of Spanish American War veterans over 55 years of age.

The president let it be known he intends to go ahead with plans for reciprocal tariff agreements but will seek senate approval in the regular manner, after, instead of before, negotiation.

The house accepted a senate amendment to the pas tax-postage power bill, exempting municipally owned plants from the proposed three per cent power tax.

James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, said changes in the medicinal liquor law had put a strain on whiskey supplies and repeal of the 18th amendment would necessitate plans for speeding up distilleries.

Notes were dispatched to America's debtor nations reminding them of payments due Thursday.

BAER, DEMPSEY PLANNING TOUR

Schmeling Conqueror Is All for Jack, the Promoter

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, June 9. (AP)—Firmly perched in the driver's seat, as complete a monarch of fistiana for the time being as Tex Rickard ever was, Jack Dempsey boldly set out today to capitalize the popularity suddenly come to Max Baer through his spectacular knockout of Max Schmeling.

With only one major promotional venture behind him, and that both an artistic and financial success, Dempsey immediately planned a triumphal tour for the giant destroyer from California, set to work on a match between Baer and either Jack Sharkey or Primo Carnera here in the fall, and rolled over in his mind additional bouts in Miami Beach, Fla., in February, and California next year.

"He's My Pal"

Reactions from Baer's amazing conquest of the former heavyweight champion in nine and a fraction rounds in the Yankee Stadium last night poured in on both Dempsey and his protege today. The big, curly headed dynamiter, who all but crushed Schmeling with his terrific right hand smashes to the head, put himself entirely in Dempsey's keeping.

"He's my pal," he grinned as he spent a busy day squiring June Knight, musical comedy star, around town through admiring crowds that greeted them everywhere. "I'll fight for Jack any time, any where. He just has to say when."

So Dempsey started arrangements for a tour, with Baer boxing exhibitions and himself refereeing, that will take them to Buffalo next Friday night, and from there across the country. They will return here to see Jack Sharkey defend his heavyweight title against Primo Carnera for Madison Square Garden June 29.

Dempsey wants the winner of that match for a September battle with Baer, but there are slight complications. Sharkey has not contracted with further fights for the Garden, thus leaving him eligible to jump under the Dempsey banner if he retains his title. But Carnera has given the Garden a year's option on his services if he becomes champion.

Schmeling Heartbroken

Meanwhile Schmeling, heartbroken at his defeat, asked Dempsey for another chance at Baer before leaving to spend the week-end with an uncle in Bloomfield, N. J.

"I'll bet Baer $50,000, or my share of the receipts, that he can't do it again," Max said. "I will fight him anywhere. I will yet win back the title."

Schmeling, puffed about the eyes from the right hand belts that never gave him a chance last night, has been offered a match with King Levinsky in Chicago. He is undecided about returning immediately to Germany, and will make no decisions until next week.

Official figures showed today that 51,000 paid admissions to the stadium with receipts $243,000, including taxes. Schmeling received about $75,000 for his services, Baer $25,000, Dempsey's profit, after all reductions, was estimated at about $20,000.

Although a couple of attachments were filed against Baer's pay check, one in a suit for $15,000, another for $21,436.46, they came too late as the Californian had collected his money in advance.

Baer is in the midst of a wide variety of legal difficulties, including breach of promise suits, a divorce action, and contractural difficulties with various managers he hired at odd moments in his sarum scarum career.

Dempsey insists however that Baer now is going to work seriously. He may fight Sharkey whether the champion wins or loses against Primo Carnera, in Florida in February.

Parochials Elect Honorary Captains

Honorary captains in three sports were selected yesterday by lettermen of the St. Joseph high school. The honorary football captaincy was awarded to Francis McGovern. Henry Bodette was elected honorary basketball captain and Lionel Beaumier won the unanimous verdict for honorary track captain.

The Parochials do not select captains before the season but choose honorary pilots at the close of the season.

Wisconsin Senate Starts Work Early

Madison, Wis., June 9 (AP)—The state senate went to work with the milk man today, started in at 5 a. m. on a lagging calendar and took action to bring about an early adjournment of the session.

Within five hours after it had established the precedent of meeting at sunrise the senate had cleaned up almost 50 bills.

Everybody thought the senators, having suffered from a few days of intensive heat, were playing a joke when they voted yesterday to meet at 5 o'clock this morning. But 23 members answered the opening roll call.

More women than men live to be centenarians.

'32 our capital losses (deductible under the law just as previously the profits had been added) were such as more than to wipe out all our income and leave nothing taxable. Income taxes are, after all, payable upon income and not upon deficits. We trust these facts will now be clearly understood."

Huey Long Interested

Senator Costigan (D. Colo) questioned Thomas W. Lamont almost an hour about the influence of the Morgan firm and its many corporate activities. He said a recent book had stated that Morgan through interlocking directorates and other means controlled one-fourth the corporate assets of the country.

"I think you would have to reach some far-fetched conclusions to reach anything like that figure," Lamont smiled. "I think there is a popular illusion that we are much more powerful than we are."

In answer to further questions, Lamont said the "Morgan fortune has never been regarded as one of the great ones," a fact which "in itself will answer some of the things that have been said about us."

Costigan turned the questioning to concentration of wealth.

"I think," Lamont said, "that an examination of the distribution of the assets of industries and corporations for the last several years will show—save for the depression years—that wealth is getting to people of the country—is being diffused."

Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana asked permission to interrogate the elder Lamont at the afternoon session and strove in a vigorous series of questions to determine whether the Morgan firm, or Lamont, had anything to do with an attack upon Long in Colliers, a magazine published by the Crowell Publishing company.

Lamont said he was a director of the Crowell Publishing company and had written articles for Colliers but that he had no connection with the editorial policy of the magazine and had never read or heard of the article assailing the Louisiana senator.

Roosevelt Planning Vacation Next Week

Washington, June 9 (AP)—A week from tonight President Roosevelt hopes to be out on the bounding seas off the Massachusetts coast enroute to Camp Bello Island, just over the border in Nova Scotia.

Assured by congressional leaders of early adjournment of the extra session, the president laid plans today for his first vacation since entering the White House. He expects to be back at the capital for the entire month of July.

Mr. Roosevelt's plans call for departure next Thursday night for Groton school in Massachusetts to attend commencement exercises the following day when his son, Franklin, Jr., is graduated.

That night somewhere along the Massachusetts coast the president will board the Amberjack, 2nd, a trim sea-going schooner, for a slow cruise of two weeks along the New England coast to East Port, Main. At Potland, his boys from Groton, Franklin and John—will join the cruise. James, the eldest son, will be with the president from the start.

B. L. E. Chief Named In Indictment For False Book Entries

Cleveland, June 9 (AP)—Alvanley Johnston, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, was indicted with two other men today for misapplication of funds and false entries in the books of the Standard Trust Bank of Cleveland, which collapsed nearly two years ago. Johnston denied the charge.

The Standard Trust Bank reported $13,200,000 in deposits when it closed December 19, 1931, about two years after it had succeeded the Brotherhood of Engineers' Co-operative National Bank and two smaller institutions.

The indictments came in the midst of a fierce struggle between the aggressive Johnston and a self-styled group of progressives who have set out to unseat the grand chief during the current Brotherhood convention in Cleveland.

Roosevelt Denies Plans To Re-Wed

Reno, Nev., June 9 (AP)—Elliott Roosevelt added his denial to that of Miss Ruth Googins today when he spiked as untrue reports he and the attractive Fort Worth brunette might be married after his Nevada divorce from the former Elizabeth Donner of Philadelphia.

Earlier in the day Miss Googins had denied existence of a romance between herself and the second son of the president.

Young Roosevelt came into Reno from Lake Tahoe for a conference with his attorney, Samuel Platt, and, although advised by Platt "not to say a word," quite readily admitted an acquaintance with Miss Googins and then laughingly hastened to deny she was more than just a good friend.

"It's a wonder," he said, "that they haven't got me in a romance with Helene Madison, the swimmer. We posed for a picture together down at Palm Springs, you know."

FACTORY BLAST FATAL TO NINE

Other Lives Believed to Have Been Lost in Explosion

North Arlington, N. J. June 9 (AP) Nine persons were reported killed and several others are believed to have been fatally burned in an explosion tonight that wrecked the Atlantic Pyroxylin Waste comany, dealers in celluloid scra at 316 River Road.

The blast filled the air with burning pieces of celluoid and set fire to six homes and a garage within a radius of 150 feet. Police reported a gasoline tank exploded in the garage and caused the deaths of several persons whose clothing was ignited.

Three in one family died when their home burned.

The reported list of known dead:

Harry Applegar.
Mrs. Harry Applegar, his wife.
Applegar child.
Mrs. Joseph A. Klitch.
Mrs. Margaret La Tone.
Mr. and Mrs. William Dale.
One unidentified.

At the time of the explosion, a small crowd of men, women and children were bathing in the Passaic river from a small beach near the factory. Flames shot from broken doors and windows and burned many of the bathers.

In the confusion to escape it was reported some of the swimmers, including children, dived or jumped into the river. It was thought some of these may have drowned.

It was believed as many as seventy-five persons were burned.

The opinion was expressed by firemen and police that other bodies may lie in the ruins of the houses destroyed by the fire.

Firemen said the explosion was caused by spontaneous combustion as a result of the heat.

Those New Ideas In Economics

Balancing the Budget; Two Kings of Expenditures.

BY J. R. BRACKETT
(Associated Press Business Writer)

New York (AP)—How can a government spend more than it receives and yet have a balanced budget?

The answer to this paradox is both a matter of bookkeeping and a practical matter. It comes down to paying for expenses that recur year after year out of the budget while paying for other expenditures by borrowing money.

One expenditure is known as ordinary or operating and the other as extraordinary.

The government has certain ordinary expenses in operating—for instance, the department of agriculture and other state departments. It must also pay money to war veterans every year. To meet these expenses the government assesses taxes.

Expenses for Public Works

On the other hand, the government at times must spend large sums of money for extraordinary purposes. At present it plans to spend $3,300,000,000 for public works. To raise this money by taxation at once would mean that taxes would have to be more than doubled.

To avoid such taxes the government borrows, proposing to pay off the debt installments. Enough money must be raised by taxation to pay the interest and installments on the debt, which become ordinary expenditures.

Congress is now planning taxes to take care of the interest and installments on the proposed $3,300,000,000 extraordinary expenditures, and the president has insisted that if expences for veterans are increased new taxes to meet those payments must be affixed.

Below War Record

The government's total debt is still some $5,000,000,000 below the record set at the end of the war, during which it was necessary to borrow much money to meet extraordinary war expenditures.

The total then reached was more than $25,000,000,000, against more than $21,000,000,000 today. The debt was reduced to some $16,000,000,000 between 1919 and 1930.

Political economists say that in times of depression the government is about the only agency which can spend money and that it must spend it to care for the unemployed and for other purposes.

PACKING LUGGAGE

Washington, June 9 (AP)—In a day and night of steaming action, congress made ready today to head homeward, probably tomorrow, from three months of unprecedented peace time legislative activity.

Passage by the senate of the industry control-public works bill sent to conference the last of the major measures on the administration's calendar for action. It left before the senate a bill to provide funds for the operation of the new farm credit agency and there was a distinct possibility that this would be disposed of rapidly tomorrow.

Except for this, the other bills on the program either were at the White House or were traveling down Pennsylvania avenue for the presidential signature.

In the last few hours of today's session, action was completed on:

A measure creating a coordinator to bring order and profit into the railroad business.

A bill creating a $2,000,000,000 organization to aid home owners.

A tax measure continuing for a year the one cent gasoline levy, giving the president power to lower postal rates, and transferring from the producer to the consumer the three per cent electricity tax.

The major measures left pending as a tired senate went home tonight after twelve hours of work were the industrial bill, to be finally determined in conference, and the veterans dispute pending in the independent offices appropriation bill in the house.

Several other measures, of secondarily importance, including one to give President Roosevelt power to name a non-resident governor of Hawaii, still had to be acted upon by the senate but members considered that the house measure might be accepted intact.

LOBBY INQUIRY IN BLIND ALLEY

Nothing Substantial Was Learned, Members Confess

BY GILBERT T. SHILSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Lansing, June 9 (AP)—The legislative committee investigating lobbying practically ended its hearings today, as members admitted they had been following unproductive trails.

Perjury charges may grow out of the inquiry, Rep. Lawrence O'Neill, Democrat, of Paris, chairman of the committee, announced. He and Rep. Leslie T. Barber, Democrat, Edmore, declared evidence will be available shortly which may call for prosecutions.

Committee Adjourns

Rep. Earl Burhams, Republican, Paw Paw, meanwhile continued his search of the statutes and examination of testimony offered by John W. Smith, Detroit councilman, to determine whether contempt had been committed.

Aside from the possibility of contempt or perjury action against witnesses the investigation appeared to be ended. No move had been made to accept the offer of the Ingham county prosecutor to petition for a 17 member grand jury "if the money to meet expenses is provided." A Wayne county grand jury was delving into charges of improper lobbying, however, and was seeking as witnesses some lobbyists named in the Lansing inquiry.

The investigating committee adjourned subject to the call of the chairman after Rep. Ate Dykstra, Republican, Grand Rapids, had announced:

"We have been fooled long enough by men like Smith. Their testimony offered no substantiation of their charges. We have been chasing rainbows and spending time and money without getting anywhere."

Patrick H. O'Brien, attorney general, agreed the committee might as well discontinue taking testimony and should continue in existence only to receive the promised evidence relative to perjury.

Fjetland Testifies

The final witnesses in the inquiry were Kit F. Clardy, chairman of the state public utilities commission, O. K. Fjetland, secretary to Governor Comstock, and Maurice Morse, Detroit attorney. Smith cited Morse as one who might be able to tell the committee something about a $25,000 slush fund the former claimed was collected to influence legislation. Morse said he knew nothing of such a fund, didn't know Smith and had been connected in no way with small loan or other lobbying.

Clardy, a voluntary witness, scored Smith and Edward T. Fitzgerald, a member of the state public utilities commission, answering Smith's charge that the commission aired relatives of legislators in an effort to block bills designed to abolish the commission, he said the only relative of a legislator employed recently was a brotner of Senator Leo G. Karwick, Democrat, Detroit. He stated a nephew of Rep. Gus T. Hartman, Republican, of Houghton, has been on the payroll more than two years.

Fjetland testified that Isaiah Leebove was actuated purely by friendship for the governor. He said Leebove did not ask for anything. According to Fjetland, Leebove received no pay nor expense money for making a prison survey at the request of the governor. Smith charged that Leebove had "taken command of the government."

Pascoe Services Planned For Sunday

Negaunee, Mich., June 9 (AP)—Funeral services for Thomas A. Pasco, 53, who died Thursday afternoon in the offices of his attorney, John J. Walsh, in Marquette, shortly after he had been convicted om misapplication of funds of the now closed Negaunee State Bank, will be held in the home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Pascoe, a lifelong resident of Negaunee, had been a banker for 34 years, previous to which he thaught school in lower Michigan. He served two terms as mayor of Negaunee.

SCHOOL RELIEF BILL ATTACKED

Senator Doyle Says Need of Poor Districts Not Recognized

Lansing, Mich.—State Senator W. F. Doyle of the Thirtieth senatorial district and H. P. Lindsay, secretary of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, appeared before a joint meeting of the finance and education committee of the senate this morning to oppose some of the provisions of the school aid bill.

The measure, as introduced in the legislature, provides that $15,000,000 be taken from the receipts of the proposed sales tax as supplementary aid to school districts, whose revenues have been reduced as a result of the adoption of the 15-mill tax limitation amendment.

Senator Doyle proposed amending the provision, requiring that a three mill levy on local real estate as the basis for computing the minimum educational program, by reducing this rate to two mills. The senator contended that the $15,000,000 fund set up in the bill is an adequate amount for school aid but, by the terms of the bill, the money is not properly distributed. He maintains that under this bill the rich communities get richer and the poor get poorer. He also contended that if the entire state were treated in this bill as the poorer communities were, the amount could be cut down five million dollars.

Senator Doyle took the position that one of two things must be done. The bill must either be changed, reducing the fund from $15,000,000 to $10,000,000 thereby saving the taxpayers of this state $5,000,000, or treat the poor communities in a better manner than proposed under the bill.

Doyle announced he would attempt to amend the bill in the finance committee and, if not successful, will carry his fight for equalization of educational advantages to the floor of the senate. Mr. Lindsay has been in Lansing for ten days working on statistics concerning school finances. Doyle and Lindsay were the only two spokesmen for the smaller and poorer school districts at the senate committee hearing.

New Officers For Escanaba Legion Nominated Monday

Nomination of officers in Cloverland Post No. 82, American Legion, will take place at the regular monthly meeting to be held Monday evening, June 12, at the Eagles' hall.

The meeting date was set ahead one week so as not to conflict with the opening of the Escanaba Legion indoor circus at the Coliseum, June 19.

Several candidates have been mentioned for the commandership of the local Legion post to succeed C. W. Flanagan, who has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election. The annual election will take place at the July meeting, with installation at the following meeting in August.

SIX VETERANS, DELTA'S QUOTA

Additional Forest Crews To Be Enrolled Next Week

Delta county has been assigned a quota of six war veterans, who may be enrolled in Civilian Conservation Corps service next week, according to a notice received yesterday by Cloverland Post No. 82 of the American Legion from the Detroit regional office of the Veterans Administration.

Quotas for other upper peninsula counties are as follows: Alger 2, Baraga 2, Chippewa 5, Dickinson 5, Gogebic 5, Houghton 11, Iron 6, Keweenaw 1, Luce 1, Mackinac 2, Marquette 9, Menominee 6, Ontonagon 3, and Schoolcraft 2. The quota for the entire United States is 25,000.

Ninety-three per cent of these quotas will be filled by world war veterans, the remaining seven per cent by veterans of other campaigns such as the Spanish American war.

Veterans have been asked to write to the Detroit regional office for application blanks. Selection will start June 12 and will be completed by June 22.

Upon notification by the Detroit regional office of being selected, the veteran will be requested to report to the nearest army recruiting station for physical examination, enrollment and acceptance, according to present plans.

The work schedule is 40 hours per week with a cash allowance of $30 per month of which three-fourths must be allotted to dependents. In case of no dependents, one-quarter of the allowance will be paid the veteran each month, the remainder to be paid him at the end of the six-month enrollment period. Medical care and hospital care will be provided when needed.

Only veterans who are physically able to perform ordinary manual labor in a work camp and who have no active or communicable disease are urged to apply for enrollment.

AMUSEMENTS

"Our Betters" and "Soldiers of the Storm" will be shown again at the Delft today.

Satirical, smart and witty, "Our Betters," now showing at the Delft Theatre, is a clever adaptation of W. Somerset Maugham's sophisticated drawing-room drama and a very effective vehicle for the glamorous Constance Bennett.

Neither Connie nor her gowns have ever been lovelier, and her histrionic talents disclose a new subtlety, revealing her an actress equal to any role.

Despite the fact that Miss Bennett is almost constantly on the screen, the picture is not exclusively hers. The cast is imposing in number and importance, and Violet Kemble-Cooper, Anita Louise, Gilbert Roland, Grant Mitchell, Charles Starrett, Minor Watson, Phoebe Foster and others are tremendously effective in an interesting assortment of characters.

Just when we get to thinking there are no more worlds for the movies to conquer, along comes "Soldiers of the Storm" to the Delft Theatre, a Columbia picture having to do with the activities of the little publicized government aviators who are the flying counterpart of the widely respected Texas Rangers.

Regis Toomey, Anita Page and Barbara Barondess appear in the leading roles of the production, directed by D. Ross Lederman, action specialist. The chief function of the Border Patrol is to prevent the smuggling of drugs and aliens across the border, much of the "spotting" being done by planes. The film features some striking air shots and closes with a chase between speeding plane and fleeing auto.

U. P. IS REASSURED

MURRAY D. VAN WAGONER, who will take over the office of state highway commissioner on July 1, gave assurance to the upper peninsula in an address before the Road Builders' association that would be no discrimination between the upper and lower peninsula in the matter of road building and maintenance.

Although he insisted that he would stick to his campaign pledge of limiting new construction to connecting links, he explained that he considers main tourist lanes as being within that category. If he abides by such interpretation of his policy, this northern section of the state should rest assured that the development of our system of highways will continue to go forward as funds are made available.

The upper peninsula has obtained only a small percentage of concrete highways in comparison what has been done for the lower section of Michigan. Many miles on our principal tourist lanes remain to be paved, so therefore we should be receiving a liberal share of the new construction projects allotted in the future.

WE STAY COOL

WE JUST cannot keep ourselves from bragging about it. But, who can blame us? Almost every winter, Escanaba gets a lot of good publicity for being in a mythical "banana belt." And then summer comes and we are enjoying pleasant mornings, balmy afternoons and cool evenings, while cities to the south, east, west and north of us are sweltering in the heat, with the thermometers sizzling way up in the nineties and hundreds.

The official U. S. weather bureau report gave the highest temperature reading during the 24-hour period on Thursday as 77. In Detroit it was 100; Chicago 98; Marquette 92; Sault Ste. Marie 90; and St. Louis 94.

But we suppose we should be fair. We'll have to admit Duluth had us beat. It was 64 in that Minnesota city at the head of Lake Superior, where in the winter time it is so cold that parents sew the underwear onto their children so that they will not freeze. It might have been a little bit cooler in Duluth Thursday, but we're satisfied because when winter comes Duluth won't get a chance to boast about a "banana belt."

MAXIE BAER WINS

THE outlook for the fight game has been made much brighter by the smashing victory of Max Baer over Max Schemling, former world's champion.

The California lad's impressive showing against the German has caused fight fans to already hail him as a second Dempsey. Interest in fisticuffs will greatly increase, and will result in bigger gates for the promoters at the ensuing fight spectacles as Baer endeavors to work his way to the top.

Jack Sharkey now holds the heavyweight crown, awarded to him in his fight some months ago with Schmeling, although there has been considerable dissatisfaction over that decision. The Boston sailor boy had a difficult time with the German, whereas Baer found him quite an easy victim. And that makes the Californian loom up as a better man than Sharkey right off the bat.

Champion Sharkey will defend his title against the man mountain Italian, Primo Carnera, on June 29. After that date, fight fans will have a lot to talk about.

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

THIS is the season of commencement exercises in Escanaba and elsewhere. Thousands of boys and girls are being turned out of high schools and colleges at this time of the year to embark upon their careers.

Fortunately, this year's graduates can look into the future with more hopefulness than those who finished their schooling in the two or three preceding years. The clouds of uncertainty are being swept from the skies, and the dawn of a new day offers a vista of new opportunities for youth.

There are definite indications that this is going to be primarily a youth's world during the rest of this twentieth century. New ideas concerning social relationships are taking shape. The kind of thinking upon which the elders have been clinging for many years in their smug conservatism is being repudiated. What was all right during the last thirty or forty years does not work so well in the present day world, with all its multitudinous complexities brought about by rapid development of mass production, communications and other phases of industry.

What should be encouraging to the graduate now is that some of the theories taught in the schools are now gaining popular acceptance and are being put into practice. In the past, he was told to forget half he learned in school when entering business, industry or public affairs. Now, new political, economic and social ideas are in ascendancy, and these happen to be things that students have been learning, of late. The old codgers will have to brush up to keep up with the young folks, who will be having most of the responsibility of rebuilding a world that broke down while in the hands of their elders.

THE CRUSADERS OPEN WAR ON RACKETEERS

NOT least significant of recent developments is the fact that the Crusaders, originally organized to fight prohibition, have now converted themselves into an organization to make war on racketeers.

Because of the intimate hookup between the prohibition law and the racketeer, any group which works for the repeal of prohibition has got to give some attention to the racketeer problem.

There is no question but that the racketeer has done a great deal to swing public sentiment against prohibition. Justly or otherwise, the 18th amendment has been blamed for his existence. But we should be making a tremendous mistake if we took it for granted that all we need to do to abolish him is to abolish the 18th amendment.

That would help, of course. The bootleg liquor racket was first of the large-scale rackets, and from the very start it was the most lucrative. But no one who reads the daily newspapers and sees ever-recurring headlines about the "milk racketeers," the "dry cleaning racketeers," the "labor racketeers," the "gambling syndicates," and so on, can be so naive as to suppose that the booze racket stands alone.

During the decade that began in 1920 the words "organized crime" took on a very real and definite meaning. Before that, big cities had had scattered groups of criminals operating independently, and they had had more or less loose groups of hoodlums who worked in gangs; but there never had been any genuine centralization of any carefully-planned organization. The powerful and cohesive underworld gangs that curse our cities today are creations of the last dozen years.

In part these groups owed their birth to prohibition—but only in part. They are even more indebted to the fact that through many years we had let venality, favoritism and self-interest rule our city politics. The ward leader, the corrupt alderman, the crooked political boss—these men presided at the racketeer's birth, and they continue to shelter the racketeer today.

That is why the Crusaders' action is so encouraging. Repealing prohibition will only be a first step in the war on rackets. To pretend that it will do the whole job would be to delude ourselves in a tragic and expensive manner.

Quite often a bridge player gets the most kick out of the game when playing opposite his own wife.

DARLING FOOL

(By NEA Service) BY MABEL McELLIOTT

CHAPTER XLIV

Monnie was at the telephone the following Monday morning trying to get a blurred connection.

"Long distance calling," the operator droned. "Calling Miss O'Dare."

Then came a man's voice, leisurely, deliberate. "Monica?"

"Yes."

"This is Arthur Mackenzie. I'm passing through your town tonight. May I stop to see you?"

Almost before she knew it she had answered him and the brief connection was broken. A step sounded behind her and there stood Charles Eustace.

"Sorry I interrupted."

She smiled at him. "You didn't. It was just a friend." Then she thought, "How stupid of me to be like this with him!" She explained, "It was Arthur Mackenzie. He's dropping in to see me tonight."

"Dropping in?" Charles' voice was sarcastic. "From London or Paris?"

She flushed, lifting her chin. "Neither. Merely from New York. Why, don't you like him?"

Charles shrugged. "He's all right. One of those picturesque buccaneers of finance. Rich enough for—"

"For what?" Monica prompted him.

"For anything." Charles' tone dropped the subject. Courteously, as one stranger to another, he asked, "Is the doctor in?"

"No, he's not." How odd, she thought, that he didn't know Dr. Waterman had gone to Chicago for that conference. Surely she had heard him tell Charles only yesterday about the trip.

"I won't stop then." Charles said. He was gone with a cool and distant bow in her direction.

"I hate him!" Monnie said, aloud in the quiet room. She was furiously angry. No one had ever made her so angry before. She wanted to quarrel with him violently, satisfyingly.

* * *

"What did you say?" Charles was on the threshold again, lean and elegant. He had heard her!

"Nothing!" She stared back at him, all defiance.

"Oh, yes, you did." Suddenly his face was not two inches away from her own. He too, was angry. His lips were set grimly. Monica deliberately pouted her own, in the shape of a kiss. Almost before she knew what was happening he had pinned her arms to her sides, was kissing her fiercely, angrily.

"You asked for that."

"Oh, oh!" She panted, struggling for release. "How dare you?"

"You wanted me to." He taunted her with that, letting her go.

She would have struck at him blindly but again those strong arms pinioned her as in a vise. "Saving them for Mackenzie, eh?"

Monica flushed a deep scarlet. Not only the words but the tone were insulting.

"You—you're insufferable! I don't know why I ever thought you were my friend."

"Friend!" Charles laughed softly. "You must know that's rot—friendship between a man and a girl. Either they're in love and know it or—or—"

"Or what?" She was still furious with him but curiosity had her in its grip. She must know what he meant to say.

"Or they're in love and don't know it," Charles finished shortly. He walked over to a mirror, coolly straightening his tie.

"Sorry. I didn't mean to behave like a cave man," he said. "I just stopped in, really, to say goodby. I'm leaving day after tomorrow. Before I go may I wish you health, happiness and prosperity—all that sort of thing?"

"Thank you." Monnie was trembling all over. She could scarcely stand but she was determined he should not know it.

"I suppose I won't be invited to the wedding."

"I don't know what you're talking about."

His voice was harsh. "Don't you? Miss Austice says he wanted you to marry him in London and that you'd almost made up your mind."

"Really? Who's listening to gossip now." She wanted to put her hands on her hips and shout at him. She had never felt such a passion of violence in her life. "One hears things." Charles lit a cigaret, watching her coolly.

"And you assume I couldn't resist the charms of great wealth?"

"What girl could?"

Monica whirled on him, a veritable small fury. "You mean 'what poor girl'! Oh, how dare you talk to me like that? You never would—to someone—someone like—" She could not go on. She was afraid, desperately afraid, she was going to cry.

"Like whom?"

She regained her composure after a struggle. "Like Ellen Willard—or—or—Sandra." Her tone had a wealth of bitterness in it, a deep, abiding hurt.

Charles' tone was contrite. "Monnie, I didn't mean that. You know I didn't. I'm sorry."

She would not, could not, forgive him the injury. All the pent-up pride and loneliness of the past few months flowed over her and, putting her head down on the desk, she wept bitterly.

He hovered over her, desperately contrite.

"No, no, don't touch me. You're all alike—all of you!"

"Whom do you mean?"

"Everybody in this wretched place." The words came between sobs. "At first you were so nice—wonderful, really. I never had known anyone like you. But now you're like all the rest. Go away! I never want to see you again!"

Presently she was able to raise her head, to dry her eyes. Charles stood watching her wretchedly.

"Monnie, if you'd only listen—"

She shook her head with tragic dignity. "You can't do anything now. You've done the worst. I shall never forget it—"

Nor forgive, added her sore heart.

Monnie dressed half-heartedly for the coming of her visitor that evening. He had said his train would arrive at seven and he would call directly afterward. Monnie was not thinking very clearly of him. Over and over again she rehearsed the scene of the afternoon. Words, expression, gestures—all were printed on her brain. She looked at herself curiously in the mirror, her eyes darkening at the thought of Charles' kisses. How had he ever dared? Oh, she would show him! He thought the worst of her anyhow. She might as well give him reason for thinking it.

Kay came in as she was putting the finishing touches to her hair.

"Nice," commented the younger sister briefly. "I like your hair that way. Makes you look frail and interesting." She grinned, gamin-wise.

"What's this king of finance like, anyhow?" Kay demanded, dropping on the bed and propping her chin on her linked fingers. "I'm dying to see him. If the country clubbers thought we had bagged such a big bird they'd all be on our doorstep."

"He's—well, he looks like a movie director's idea of a Wall street man," Monica confessed, wrinkling her brow. "He knows what he wants. When he goes into a restaurant all the waiters jump."

"Mmmm-mm," Kay sighed deeply. "Then he's a man after my own heart. I like 'em bossy."

"He's so rich it scares you," Monnie said after a pause. "But he's nice in spite of it."

"Like him?" Kay watched her idly.

"Oh, yes." Monnie polished her nails.

"Don't seem awfully enthusiastic."

"Don't I? Well, I can't help that." He really is splendid and I'm very anxious to see him."

Kay rolled over on her back and regarded the ceiling. "Home Town Girl Marries King of Wall Street," she chanted sweetly. "Hung with ropes of Diamonds."

"Don't be an idiot." Monnie tightened her lips, remembering the man who had held her in his arms only a few short hours before. Charles would see! She would show him.

If Arthur Mackenzie asked her to marry him tonight she was going to say "Yes."

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE TWO OR THREE

The chief came in just now and laid
Upon my desk the bills marked "Paid"
Along my route among my trade;
And I was rather proud to see
The fellows who had bought of me
Had paid—excepting two or three.

I looked them over, long and well;
And those who paid, I'm here to tell,
Had been the hardest ones to sell.
As for the others, those who owe,
When I had called, my line to show,
Not even one had answered no.

I think I learned a lesson then
I'll pass along to other men;
(I know I'll not get caught again):
Though selling some is simply fun,
When all is said and all is done,
The easy sale's the poorest one.

The four or five, or eight or nine,
May make you work to sell your line,
But they're the customers for mine.
It's hard to sell them, I agree,
Make some men listen, some men see—
But look out for the two or three.

Gardens Grow Fast—Scores of gardens planted on city property in the vicinity of the sewage treatment plant are making an excellent showing this season. The weather has been favorable for growing, and the only handicap so far has been the appearance of small grasshoppers. The first gardens were planted on the site last year as a welfare project, and the extent of the plot has been greatly increased this season.

Fourteenth Street Grading Progresses

Good progress is being made on the grading of Fourteenth street, south from Eleventh avenue, new route of M-35 through the city.

City crews are using surplus soil to fill in around the site of the old sewage plant tanks, and in "making" land on the lake shore south of the tourist park.

I should no more call reflation which is taking place from abnormally low price levels inflation than I should call a man a mountaineer when he is coming up from the cellar.

—Sir Josiah Stamp, director of the Bank of England, in address at Chicago.

FLORISTS WILL AID SHUT-INS

Flowers To Be Distributed Today in Gladstone, Escanaba

Flowers donated by the local florists will be distributed to the hospitals and county poor farm today and also will be delivered to private homes in Escanaba and Gladstone in which shut-ins have been confined.

The Shut-In Day program will be sponsored annually by the Florists Telegraph Delivery association whose president, Frank J. Baker, is the author of the idea to spread joy to the shut-ins.

Mayor Carl J. Sawyer yesterday endorsed the program and issued the following statement:

In as much as June 10th has been designated as National Flower Shut-In Day by 5500 members of the Florists Association and it appears to be a worthy movement I feel that this movement should have the cooperation of the citizens of this city.

The names of shut-ins have been obtained and the flowers will be delivered by ladies of the following ladies organizations:

Mrs. Arthur Peterson, Mrs. E. J. McMartin, Mrs. H. I. Davies, Womans' Club.

Escanaba Drivers Lacking Licenses

Many motorists in Escanaba are without operator's licenses, officers found yesterday in conducting the police department's annual safety campaign. Several drivers had licenses which had expired, and some of them had no licenses at all. No O. K. stickers are issued in the safety campaign until driver licenses are secured and safety equipment of the automobile is in efficient working condition.

A dozen or more motorists were turned back yesterday because their brakes were faulty and not able to keep the car in perfect control at all times. Officers in charge of the testing are asking that old O. K. stickers be removed from windshields so that the new ones for 1933 may be affixed.

Contributions to the home boards of the Congregational and Christian churches dropped 46 per cent in the first quarter of 1933 as compared with the same period for 1932.

LABORATORY TESTS CHECK EFFICACY OF KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

Show Why This Delicious Cereal Overcomes Common Constipation

There are scientific reasons for the success of ALL-BRAN in preventing and relieving common constipation. Laboratory investigations show that it supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines; and vitamin B to promote appetite, and help tone the intestinal tract.

These two important food-elements aid regular habits, and help do away with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy, so often the result of constipation.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild in action—much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" far more healthful than using pills and drugs—so often habit-forming!

Just eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's daily—enough for most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Besides, ALL-BRAN brings your body twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. Equally tasty as a cereal, or used in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Old-Fashioned Shortcake Still Favored Dessert

Do you remember the description of the high-tea in the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow"? Such an array of good things to eat would bewilder us today. But I'm sure that of the "sweet cakes and short cakes, ginger cakes and honey cakes, and the whole family of cakes," most of us would yield to the shortcake, even as Ichabod Crane did more than 100 years ago.

Cut fruit in small pieces, cover with sugar and let stand in a warm place for 20 to 30 minutes. This extracts some of the juice and the fruit itself is thoroughly sweetened.

Old-fashioned shortcake makes a very substantial dessert and is suitable to serve after a light meal. In fact, a good-sized wedge of strawberry shortcacke served with lots of rich cream is almost a full meal in itself—and a well balanced one, too.

The following rule will serve four persons generously:

Old-Fashioned Strawberry Shortcake

One quart of strawberries, 3-4 cup granuated sugar, 1½ cups flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons butter or other shortening and butter mixed, ½ cup milk or water (about).

Wash and hull berries and cut in quarters. Sprinkle with sugar and let stand in a warm place while mixing and baking shortcake. Mix and sift flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, salt and baking powder. Work in shortening with pastry blender or rub in with tips of fingers. Cut in liquid to make a soft dough. Divide dough in halves and roll lightly on a floured molding board to fit baking pan. Place in pan which has been oiled and floured. Spread generously with softened butter and cover with remaining dough which has been rolled to fit lower section. Put into a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., and gradually increase heat to 400 degrees F. Bake 25 minutes. When ready to serve, split section apart. Spread lower secoion with butter and cover with a thick layer of berries and juice. But on top section of biscuit and add more berries. This may be topped with slightly sweetened whipped cream and garnished with perfect whole berries which have been saved for the purpose. Serve with rich plain cream.

Instead of making one large shortcake the dough may be cut in rounds to make individual cakes. These are split and served like the large one.

Souffle-Making Simple If You Follow Recipe

There's something about a souffle that captures everyone's interest and admiration. And while souffle-making seems most mysterious to the unitiated, there's no conjuring trick about it. A few simple rules lead the way to a perfect souffle.

The mixing of a souffle is of prime importance. Whites and yolks of eggs must be beaten separately, the yolks with a rotary beater until thick and lemon colored and the whites on a platter with a wire whisk until stiff. Be sure to "fold" the whites into yolk mixture carefully. The fluffy consistency of the finished souffle depends upon this "folding" which prevents the breaking of the air bubbles in the egg whites.

Long slow baking is also one of the secrets of souffle making. Forty to fifty minutes in an average baking dish should be allowed for baking at a temperature of 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

When firm to the touch or when a sharp knife inserted in the center of the souffle comes out clean, the souffle is done.

Chocolate Souffle

This dessert is distinctly "smart" and for that reason suitable for company occasions. However, it is so nourishing that it makes a splendid family dessert when vegetables have been served in place of meat.

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 2 squares bitter chocolate, 6 tablespoons granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons hot water, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 4 eggs.

Melt butter and stir in flour. When perfectly blended slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Cook and stir until mixture boils. Melt chocolate over hot water, add sugar and hot water and stir until thick and lemon colored. Beat until cool. Add salt to whites of eggs and beat until stiff. Add vanilla to cooked mixture and fold in whites of eggs. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with vanilla or a drop of oil of peppermint.

Actual Experience Reveals How Not To Catch A Trout

Newberry, June 9—The story of the "one that got away" comes here in an unusual version concerning a party of Newberry rodsmen who went fishing the other day at the mouth of the Two Heart. The party consisted of Percy Chapman, Jack Phillips, Russell Carlson and Arthur Reardon.

Mr. Reardon had been fishing for some time, throwing his line out into the lake just at the mouth of the stream and having little luck. He baited his hook with a large cluster of worms and let out a lot of line. Just as he was about to give up he got a bite. The line raced through the water. The suddenness of the attack after so much inaction so startled the fisherman that he let the reel spin for a moment, then caught it and started to back up along the shore. The fight continued and he knew he had the granddad of trout pretty well hooked. So it is to be understood that Mr. Reardon, experienced fisherman though he is, got a little bit excited. He raced back up the bank dragging that fish as fast as he could.

Then Old Man Bad Luck stepped in. The reel came loose and fell to the ground and the fish started out again. About here is it difficult to tell just what happened. Some say Jack Phillips fell on the reel just as it slipped into the water and brought the fish to a halt. At any rate, Mr. Reardon found himself with his reel in his hands and at one end of the line and a fighting trout of mammoth size at the other end of fifty or sixty feet of silk.

The gentle art of trout landing was then practiced until after a battle the trout was in shallow water and he started to lift it. It was a beauty, weighed not less than three pounds, so states an eye-witness. But no one will ever know but that it would have tipped the scales even more than that, for in some manner, not accounted for at this date, that fish came off the hook. Mr. Phillips hugged it to his manly bosom in many wild embraces, it slipped through his arms, floundered in the sand, was batted this way and that by the two excited men, one of whom is reported to have tried a football tackle on it. Finally it went into the water and Mr. Reardon went after it but only succeeded in "tagging" it as it slipped into the deep. As for the other members of the party, they did not try to help. They were up on the bank having fits.

JUNE TERM TO BE SHORT ONE

Burns and Isaac To Be Arraigned; No Jury Cases To Be Held

What promises to be an exceedingly short term will be held here beginning at ten o'clock on Monday morning, June 19, when the June term of circuit court will convene under Judge Herbert W. Runnels, of Sault Ste. Marie. Listed on the calendar are only three new criminal cases, no new jury and non-jury civil cases, and only one new case in chancery.

Owing to the fact that the June term will be a non-jury affair, the sensational case against Patrick Burns, alleged Detroit gangster charged with obtaining money under false pretenses in a fake stock-selling deal in connection with a supposed invention of a rotary airplane motor, will not come up for trial. Burns, who is being represented by Herbert & Hixson, local law firm, will be arraigned on two separate but similar charges, one on the complaint of Harvey Goudreau, of Seul Choix, and the other that of John A. Carlson, of this city. He is out on $10,000 bail.

Burns, through his attorneys is expected to plead not guilty, and his case will no doubt be continued until the September term of court. Because of the wide publicity given and the intense local interest attached to the case there is a strong possibility that defense counsel will ask for a change of venue.

To Plead Guilty

Isaac, in view of his confession and the fact that he is the chief witness for the People in the cases against Burns, is expected to plead guilty to the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Among the other criminal cases to be continued until the September jury term is the case against Edward LaMotte on a charge of practicing medicine and surgery without a license. The trial at the April term resulted in a deadlock when the jury failed to agree upon a verdict after six hours of deliberation.

The only non-jury civil case, continued from the April term, is that of Allen Tweedy and Ray Perring Co., partners doing business as the Holland Creek Fur Farm vs. Clifford G. Bridges. Torval E. Strom is representing the plaintiff while the law firm of Ryall & Frost is acting as counsel for the defendant. The only new chancery case is that of Gertrude Brown vs. Dewey Brown, a divorce action. The plaintiff is being represented by William J. Sheahan.

BEST POTATOES CALL FOR CARE

Spraying and Dusting Are Necessary to Control Insects, Diseases

By D. L. CLANAHAN

Every year hundreds of bushels of marketable potatoes are lost because too many growers do not realize the importance of properly spraying or dusting. Tests have been conducted which show that five sprays will increase the yield of U. S. No. 1 potatoes from 40 to 50 bushels per acre. Records kept by 22 growers in the Upper Peninsula last year show that the actual cost is $3.60 per acre.

Among the insects and diseases which make it necessary to spray may be listed the following: Leaf hoppers, flea beetles, early blight, late blight and Colorado potato beetle or ordinary potato bugs. Some years some of these insects and diseases are worse than others but growers can expect some of them to be present every season. At times the entire crop is lost. However, usually the damage is confined to reduced yield and quality.

Check Up Equipment

Now is a good time to look the sprayer over to see if any new parts are needed and to get a supply of the necessary materials. Some growers will want to use a duster instead of a sprayer. Hand dusters will do a better job than hand sprayers but they are not equal to power sprayers. The dust itself is a little more expensive than the spray material, but for the man with a small acreage the hand duster is much less expensive than a power sprayer would be. Spray properly applied means maintaining a pressure of 250 to 300 pounds per square inch. This is impossible with a hand outfit.

The materials that are used are copper sulphate or blue vitrol and lime. If bugs are present use calcium arsenate. The recommended proportion is 4-6-50, that is, four pounds of copper sulphate, six pounds of lime and 50 gallons of water. The calcium arsenate for bugs is added at the rate of 1½ pounds to 50 gallons of water. Stock solutions made by dissolving 50 pounds of copper sulphate in 50 gallons of water. This is best accomplished by suspending the copper sulphate crystals in a burlap bag just under the surface of the water. The lime, 50 pounds of stone lime or 75 pounds of hydrated can be mixed with 50 gallons of water. These are known as stock solutions and can be kept several weeks if they are covered.

When ready to spray fill the 100 gallon tank half full of clean water, stir the stock solutions thoroughly and add eight gallons of the lime first. Next stir in eight gallons of the copper sulphate solution. The tank then should be filled with water.

Early Morning Best

The dust can be bought either ready mixed or the lime and the finely ground copper sulphate can be bought separately and mixed at home. This mixing is best accomplished by using a tight keg or drum. Use 80 pounds of lime to 20 pounds of the copper sulphate dust.

If dusting, it is important to do the job early in the morning when the leaves are wet with dew. It must also be put on when the wind is not blowing; while the spray can be applied any time during the day.

Plan early to protect the crop. it will pay big dividends in increased yield and quality. The dusting or spraying should begin when the plants are from four to six inches high and be repeated at intervals of a week or ten days throughout the growing season.

Opportune Hitting Wins For Cleaners

Although hits were scarce and evenly divided at six apiece, the Manistique Cleaners succeeded in bunching their total to win an easy 10-3 victory Thursday evening over the Norton Specials. The Specials filled the bases on several occasions, but failed to come through with the necessary timely hits.

Eldon Norton, after being touched for four runs in the first inning developed a streak of wildness in the second frame and was replaced by Larion. Both hurlers were accorded poor support. Stoop pitched a steady game for the Cleaners and set down nine via the strike-out route.

The scheduled game between Lauermans and the Barker Bakeries was not played.

MRS. BARSTAR LAID TO REST

Impressive Services Mark Funeral of Gladstone Pioneer

With impressive services, the funeral of Mrs. Katie Barstar was held yesterday afternoon and the remains laid to rest in the family plot in Fernwood cemetery.

Mrs. Barstar, one of Gladstone's earliest settlers died here Tuesday evening at the age of 80. Coming here in 1887 she had watched Gladstone grow from a scented colony to a city of over 5,000.

Services were from the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. I. Simpson, with whom she had made her home for over 30 years, at 2:15 o'clock and at 2:30 o'clock from the Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. H. W. Colenso officiating. During the rites, two beautiful vocal solos were sung by Noble Swenson, accompanied on the organ by Viola E. Foster.

Serving as pallbearers were C. Simpson, Soren Johnson, Sr., Hugh McMillan, E. J. Noreus, H. V. Blackwell and Floyd W. Marble.

Henry G. Barstar, Audubon, N. J., a son and only other immediate survivor of the family was present for the rites, as were a large number of out-of-town relatives and friends.

Washington News Column

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington — Roosevelt still holds the whip hand over his party in Congress.

Even the congressional revolt against drastic veterans' economies—an isolated and not surprising phenomenon—didn't diminish the significance of the remarkable flip-flop of five Democratic senators on the Finance committee who voted against the beer licensing section of the industrial recovery act until they heard their master's voice. Such a reversal is almost unthinkable.

The voice came over the telephone from the White House. It wasn't necessary for the president to threaten as he called them one by one. He wanted them to stand by his program and stand by the party. He wanted them to understand that the license provision, which enables the president to discipline the manufacturer who won't play ball with the proposed "partnership" between government and industry, was an extremely important part of his program.

Senate Nightmare

Visions of lost patronage at a time when patronage is available in large gobs and invaluable to every member, of being unwelcome at the White House and at executive departments, and of restricted legislative privileges under administration Senate leaders whose nightmares rise before lost senators when the president speaks firmly, whether he threatens or not. Byrd of Virginia was not only one of the anti-license Democrats who refused to flop when Roosevelt said "Flop!" Long, Connally, Bailey, Clark and Logan flopped.

Rugged individualism," "Jeffersonian principles" and "keep government out of business" seem to be the slogans of the Democrats who deserted the Roosevelt program at the committee's first secret session. But they had heard another voice before the White House spoke—that of the National Manufacturers' Association.

* * *

Louis McHenry Howe, the president's secretary, who is widely regarded as the second most powerful man in Washington, seems like a pleasant little gnome from the inner earth when he appeared before the Senate Military affairs committee to tell about those famous conservation camp outfit kits.

Louis is seldom on display. He is reputed to be one of the hardest men in town to see—although he said his secretary had standing orders to date up anyone who wrote a letter from a senator, congressman or personal friend. But the ease with which the camp kit salesman saw him and got action—was the reason why Louis had to come out in the limelight.

Too Fast, Maybe

He is diminutive, brown and rotund and looks rather odd in his high, stiff collar. His fingers are cigaret-stained and once he pulled a bottle of aspirin tablets or perhaps digestion pills—from his pocket and had one. He sat forward on the edge of his chair, elbows on the table, flanked by five fat Republicans—Senators Cutting, Carey, Dickinson, Austin and Barbour. He slurred his words, but he had a winning smile and blew smoke through his nostrils.

The five fat Republicans didn't find anything on Louis, but they did demonstrate some real sloppiness in the purchase of the kits at $1.46 apiece. The conservation camp office has no purchasing office and no one had really checked the value of the kits. The salesman's word was taken, Howe and Roosevelt put their names on an authorization letter written by a subordinate. The incident was a minor one, but it should have a good effect on some of the enthusiastic "New Deal boys" who glory in "cutting red tape."

11 P. M. PREVIEW

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, W. C. Fields, Rudy Vallee, Stuart Erwin, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Sari Maritza, Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, Cab Calloway and his Orchestra, and Baby Rose Marie head the all-star cast of stage, screen and radio favorites in "International House," Paramount's musical comedy hit, showing at the Rialto Theatre tonight at the 11 p. m. preview and Sunday only.

The Girls in Cellophane, as comely a group of chorines as ever pranced before cameras, furnish the dance numbers.

"International House" is one of the most lavishly-produced films ever to leave Hollywood, and its cast includes probably more and bigger "names" than ever before were assembled in one picture.

The plot deals with a group of big business representatives from all over the world who are assembled in a Chinese hotel to outbid each other on a marvelous new invention. The complications that result are highly humorous.

Kentucky judge rules that a golf player "is not legally able to control either the direction or the destination of a ball driven by him." Well, this judge doesn't beat about the bush, even if a lot of golfers do.

BATHING BEACH

Thursday night the fire bell rang and in the wake of the truck was a rush of the public toward the park.

It brought to mind a similar episode a year ago when the same bell rang for a drowning at the beach.

One wonders if our City Fathers are going to let that bell ring again for another drowning, without their having installed a full time attendant or life-guard at the beach.

Perhaps plans are being made to appoint an attendant later, but, with the earlier closing of school and the unusually hot weather bringing an earlier opening to the bathing season, it seems that there should now be someone in charge to prevent, if possible, a recurrence of last year's tragedy.

With the great number of men on the R. F. C. and the city putting in their time it seems that we could at least have one of this group at the beach throughout the bathing hours.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, June 9 (AP)—Strong grain markets and a lively rise for cotton roused stocks from hot-weather lethargy today, giving a substantial filip to selective favorites and a generally firm closing to the entire list.

Shares sold off in the morning but promptly turned dull on the reaction and around mid-session the tape idled. Strength of wheat and oats, reflecting reported deterioration in the latter due to severe heat, sent buyers scurrying for "farm belt" shares, particularly the equipment issues. Case scrambled up 9 points and International Harvester 3¼. Sears Roebuck rallied more than 2.

Tobaccos had a strong market, American Tobacco "B," Liggett & Myers "B," Lorillard and Reynolds firming 1 to 3 at the best. Rails again inclined to loiter, though Union Pacific was up a point net. American Telephone's 2 point rise stood out among utilities. Western Union and Postal preferred sobered down noticeably in view of the spiking of merger prospects through elimination of the amendment to the railroad bill permitting wire company consolidations.

U. S. Steel Higher

Many of the leading industrial favorites were rather indifferent. U. S. Steel advanced a major fraction, but Westinghouse, Bethlehem, General Electric, Chrysler, General Motors, Du Pont and American Can were little changed for the day. Oils improved, but metal stocks met profit-taking. Industrial Rayon, whose directors boosted the annual dividend basis to $3 from $2 because of improved business, lifted 1¼ to a new high. Sales totaled 5,312,580 shares.

Bonds made some wide swings in speculative and semi-speculative quarters. The German department slumped due to the moratorium decision, and telegraph company listings also weakened under the same influences that affected their shares.

Dollar exchange sank after early steadiness, but foreign currencies were marked up less rapidly than on Thursday; the advance in stocks may have received some impetus from this further depreciation of our money in terms of gold.

Progress of congress toward adjournment and prospects of a compromise on veterans' compensation allowances were among the day's developments at Washington that attracted Wall Street attention. Sidelights on business gave additional evidence of trade stimulation which has now extended beyond the period of seasonal expectancy. Commercial and industrial activity, said Dun & Bradstreet's weekly review, is "apparently immune to any potential adverse turn in the trend of political or economic adjustments."

A feature of the day's stock trading was transfer of an 85,000 share block of Commonwealth & Southern at 5, up 1-8. This was the largest single transaction since March 14 when 150,000 shares of Kreuger & Toll changed hands in one lump.

Curb Mart Absorbs Profit Taking And Then Goes Higher

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, June 9 (AP)—The curb market was again forced to absorb heavy profit-taking today, but a late upswing encouraged by advance in grain prices was of sufficient proportions to erase or reduce early losses of fractions to 3 points and establish net advances in numerous issues.

Deere was a leader in the late upturn, advancing more than 2 points. Industrials that established wide gains at the close were Swift International, Driver Harris and Sherwin Williams, all up around 3 points each. Aluminum Co. reduced a 3 point loss to a point at the close while A. O. Smith advanced to 52, up 1 point net.

Oils were conspicuously strong at intervals and closed firm. Humble rose more than a point while others up fractions to a point included Gulf, Standard Oil of Indiana and Standard Oil of Ohio.

Utilities traded rather narrowly. Electric Bond and Share and American Superpower improved sizeable fractions. American Gas & Electric regained most of a 2 point drop.

BY VICTOR EUBANK
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, June 9 (AP)—Influenced, apparently, by the weakness of various specialties, the bond market suffered another moderate relapse today despite a last-minute rally which enabled some of the principal losers to retrieve portions of their declines.

Trading turned quite dull as prices sagged and sales totaled only $15,184,000, par value, compared with $20,568,000 yesterday. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans was off three-tenths of a point, the sharpest drop in about two months.

Communications company issues were the heaviest of the day, Postal Telegraph 5s dropping 7 points and Western Union maturities losing 1 to more than 3 following the elimination from the railroad bill of the amendment which would have permitted mergers of telegraph and cable companies. International Telephone loans were also off 3 to more than 4 points. American Telephone bonds were slightly easier.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, June 9—Oats prices went skyrocketing today and outdid all top records since December, 1931.
Wheat and other grains shot higher with oats, wheat equaling this season's best previous figures. Illinois, Iowa and other big growers of oats reported sensationally severe crop damage from recent abnormal temperatures. In addition, there was a return of intense heat today southwest, threatening further widespread havoc to farm products.
All grains closed strong, wheat and oats both 1 3-8 to 2 1-8 above yesterday's finish, corn 1 3-4 to 2 cents up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.
Veteran traders could recall few parallels to today's market action with oats swaying the course of wheat and corn, instead of being a lowly follower of corn.
Provisions advanced with grains.
Closing indemnities: Wheat July, 73 5-8 to 3-4, 77 3-4 to 7-8; September, 75 3-8 to ½, 79 3-4; December, 77 7-8 to 78, 81½ to 3-4. Corn—July, 44 3-4 to 7-8, 47 3-8; September, 47 3-4 to 7-8, 49 7-8 to 50; December, 50½, 52 5-8 to 3-4.

POWER TREND IS MONOPOLY

Utility Probes Reveal Maze of Mammoth Combines

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of six stories on Power, its rise and its meaning as a national issue to every citizen.

* * *

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Writer

Washington — The merging, consolidating and interlacing of power companies speeded up after the war, and as it grew, the cry against the "Power Trust" grew louder. "Nothing like this gigantic monopoly has ever appeared in the history of the world," cried Gifford Pinchot.

After years of congressional speechmaking, the Federal Trade Commission was ordered to investigate. It did so, covering the situation up to 1924. Results were inconclusive, and Martin J. Insull (then president of Middle West Utilities) exulted on viewing the report, "The Power Trust must, therefore, remain a myth . . ."

But the late Senator Tom Walsh and Senator Norris were not satisfied. They sought a new investigation, which power interests tried desperately to block. The Federal Trade Commission began this in 1929, and has not yet completed it. Some 74 companies have been looked into, but 23 others have not yet been touched, including Commonwealth and Southern, and Stone and Webster, among the largest. The investigation has cost more than a million dollars, and its completion is threatened by budget cuts.

The evidence, therefore, of a single "trust," is not conclusive to date. But though it shows no nation-wide monopoly under a single ownership, it clearly shows a strong drift in that direction, and proves that many states, communities, and whole regions are dominated by a single control of power.

The unraveling of these crazy skeins of holding company within holding company, was found a painful and almost impossible task. But a plain example of how it works is shown by Senator Norris' recounting of the plight of a citizen of Lewiston, Me., who wanted to find out during the Insull era who owned his local light company.

He knew his electricity came from the Lewiston-Auburn Electric Light Co., because that was where he paid his bill. "But," continues the senator, "the Lewiston-Auburn Electric Light Co. was owned by the Androscoggin Electric Co., and the Androscoggin Electric Co. was owned by the Androscoggin Corporation; the Androscoggin Corporation was owned by the Central Maine Power Co.; the Central Maine Power Co. was owned by the New England Public Service Co.; the New England Public Service Co. was owned by the National Electric Power Co.; the National Electric Power Co. was owned by the Middle West Utilities Co.—and that was Samuel Insull!"

Mazes, Good and Bad

That sort of maze was found to be, and still is, common throughout the utility industry. Some of the holding companies and management companies which control many operating units have been of unquestionable benefit in bringing expert management, modern procedure, pooled equipment buying, to their subsidiaries. A national benefit has resulted from plant improvements, broad-scale power hookups, and extension of service.

But the other side of this picture shows many combines which seem clearly aimed at inordinate control with little investment of real money, and corporations created for no apparent reason beyond making material for further re-groupings or simply beclouding and mystifying both investing and consuming public.

The very year in which most of the biggest utility holding companies were being formed saw the collapse in bankruptcy of the W. B. Foshay interests of Minneapolis, which in addition to many other interests had controlled 73 utility companies in 11 states through its Public Utilities Consolidated Corporation.

The tragedy of Samuel Insull, former co-worker of the great Edison himself, is all too well known. His pyramid was built on Middle West Utilities, and it became so intricate that perhaps Insull himself did not quite understand it. Economies and growth on which Insull counted did not materialize; service in the 5321 communities in 32 states which he served fell off in the depression years. By the time diminishing profits filtered up to the holding companies at the top, there was not enough left to keep them going. And 185,000 stockholders in three giant corporations were utterly wiped out. Insull suns himself in Greece. The physical properties he built still stand, most of them still operating, some at a profit.

Titan of Titans

Many of the utility holding companies are still profitable and apparently economically sound. There are no two alike, and it is a mistake to lump together indiscriminately the promotional and the really economic pyramids.

The greatest of them all, for instance, the Morgan United Corporation, was still able to show profits of 76 cents on each of its 14,531,198 common shares in its latest report, in addition to regular dividends on 2,489,065 shares of preferred. Organized in 1929 by J. P. Morgan & Co., Drexel & Co., and Bonbright & Co., this giant serves an area in which live half the people of the United States. It specializes in controlling other utility companies, and has an interest in about 23 per cent of the entire electric power production of the United States. It owns part of Electric Bond and Share, itself a huge holding and operating-management company with assets which have risen above a billion dollars. Bond and Share's net income for 12 months ended March 31 was $12,009,396, or 68 cents for each of its 5,267,147 common shares.

The North American Co., which on March 31 listed assets of $894,337,253, is a typical example of grouping into regions for operating purposes. It controls four distinct groups and serves more than a million people. Group No. 1 operates in Missouri, Illinois and Iowa; No. 2, Wisconsin and Michigan; No. 3, Cleveland and vicinity; No. 4, District of Columbia and nearby Virginia and Maryland. Its properties were generating nearly two million kilowatts in 1931. Cities Service, in addition to its oil and gas interests, has immense power properties, and so have less-known firms like Commonwealth and Southern, Stone and Webster, Byllesby Engineering, and others. These utility giants make up a huge total of electric production which is certainly more than 75 per cent of the total for the entire country.

All this has come from the original company, incorporated in 1880 in New York with capital of a million dollars and named the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. By 1931 the industry showed investments of 13 billions and had gross revenues each year of more than two billions. It has taken its raps lately, like all industries, and during the last three years there has been a decline of about 25 per cent in the total number of kilowatt hours produced. The recent upturn in industry has raised this somewhat to 1,493,923,000 kilowatt hours as compared with 1,425,154,000 at the same time a year ago.

Wadsworth Sees Great Political Fight Under Way

By KIRKE SIMPSON

Washington—Is the seed of a dramatic struggle to change the whole structure of American life—industrial, political and social—already sown in the form and substance of temporary emergency legislation rushed through congress with the aid of gag rules?

James W. Wadsworth of New York, former senator, now a representative and one of the outstanding figures for the next republican presidential nomination, thinks so.

And in view of the place he holds in that tangled maze through which his party is seeking a way for a come-back in the congressional elections of next year and the following presidential race, his views are worth attention.

Wadsworth has taken up little time since he joined the house. What his own political hopes or plans may be he has never revealed, for publication at least, even to intimate friends.

Important Figure

Presumably his attitude is one of watchful waiting. Yet he cannot be ignorant of the gossip connecting his name with the very beginnings of the battle for the republican nomination in 1936, nor of the definite moves in county and state republican circles in New York which have a distinct bearing on that question.

When the democratic industry control bill was on its passage, the major republican oratorical gun fired against it in the house was by Beck of Pennsylvania.

His attack was from the constitutional angle. Yet in a brief following address Wadsworth touched upon another aspect—taking as his text the declaration of Keller of Illinois—that it spelled the end of "what we have always held as individualism in America."

The two year limitation upon the act meant nothing, Wadsworth declared, for its chief sponsors, like Senator Wagner of New York, "are looking far beyond the termination of this depression."

Sees Fight Beginning

"It is the beginning of one of the greatest political battles in our history," he added. "If this shall be the policy adopted here and continued hereafter, then I am sorry for my sons and their sons. They will live in a country whose people shall be regimented, controlled, guided and, finally, compelled to adopt whatever methods of life government imposes upon them."

So does a man who may lead one side in the fight he foresees vision the real meaning of the first, dramatic legislative rush of "the new deal."

Men's clothing industry is the second largest in New York; women's garment industry ranks first.

Goodman's 66 Gives Him Lead in National Open

JOHN REVOLTA 3 SHOTS BACK

Armour With 143 Holds Second Place at Glenview

BY ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

North Shore Golf Club, Glenview, Ill., June 9 (AP)—Johnny Goodman, 23 year old amateur star and "giant killer" from Omaha, Nebr., skyrocketed into the lead for the United States open golf championship in the gathering dusk today with a dazzling, record-smashing 66, six under par.

Johnny Goodman

The youth who has been banging at the hall of golfing fame ever since he eliminated Bobby Jones from the national amateur championship four years ago, achieved the seeming impossible by spotting Tommy Armour seven strokes and then taking the lead away from the famous "Black Scot" by a two-stroke margin for the first 36 holes of the tournament.

Armour in Second

Goodman rushed to the front at the half way mark with 75-66—141, overhauling Armour's 68-75—143, which had barely withstood the day's previous attacks, and leaving an all-star field staggering in his wake.

Joe Kirkwood of Coral Gables, Fla., adding a sub-par to his 74 for a total of 144, occupied third place; Olin Dutra of Los Angeles, the U. S. G. A. champion, was fourth with 75-71—146; and the defending champion, Gene Sarazen of New York, was a full ten strokes back with Goodman with two erratic rounds, 74-77—151.

No amateur since the reign of Robert T. Jones, Jr.—a spectator today—has given the professionals a sound a drubbing as Goodman administered to them with the calmest round of his meteoric career. Whether ar not Johnny can keep up his electrifying pace over the final 36 hole stretch tomorrow, he was king for the time being, with a round of golf that has had only one equal and no superiors in the 37-year history of the open championship.

The 66 tied the previous tournament low mark, made by Sarazen last year on his last round. It topped two strokes off the North Shore course record, set by Armour yesterday. It was featured by as marvelous an exhibition around the greens as any championship has ever witnessed.

Johnny was out in 32, a new record for the first half of the long, rugged layout, and back in 34, cheered on every step of the way by a galloping gallery of 3,500 spectators that went wild over the Nebraskan's spectacular shot making. He had started off with four birdies on the first five holes and the pressure of the crowd and the task of overhauling the game's most feted professionals rolled off the Cornhuskan's back with easy nonchalance. For climax thrills he sizzled out from 25 yards off the 17th green with an eagle three and came within three feet of holing a 211 No. 5 iron shot on the 18th, clinching his fifth birdie.

Field Cut to 67

All day long the big field, which at nightfall was cut from 145 to 67 survivors for the final day's battle, broke away at Armour's first and Triad of five strokes. One by one they, like Tommy, failed to seize the opportunities offered by the most perfect playing conditions. Kirkwood and Olin Dutra alone of the favorites closing a good share of the gap.

By contrast with yesterday's windy struggle, when Tommy's record 68 was the only par cracking point, there were ten scores that equalled or surpassed par today, and most of them were registered by players who like Leo Diegel, after toting a 71 to a 78, were already far back to regain contending positions.

Before Goodman took complete command of this disorganized pursuit, Walter Hagen had slipped to 76 for a total of 149; Neil White, 21 year old Kansan from the University of Southern California, one-day sensation, had blown himself out of the running with an 80 for an aggregate of 153, and the older cup stars, including Horton Smith, Paul Runyan, Densmore Shute and Ed Dudley, were in almost complete rout.

Then the "giant killer" went to work. Johnny has been competing in the national open for only four years but he has been steadily making his presence felt. He was low amateur last year at Fresh Meadows, finishing with a 68 for a total of 302. He first rocked the golf world by beating Jones in the first round at Pebble Beach in 1929. He was runner-up for the amateur title a year at Five Farms, beating a field of Walker cup stars, including Captain Francis Ouimet, in the process of protesting the neglect in not naming him for the American international team.

There were a half dozen on hand when Goodman cooly sank a 25 foot putt for a birdie on the first hole this afternoon. Not more than a score watched him as he bagged the more birdies in a row, being one in two belts on the 489 yard second and pitching within five feet of the third cup. By this time word began to filter around and there were perhaps 50 who saw Johnny come out of a trap and hole an eight-footer on the fifth for his fourth birdie.

When he reached the turn in 32, aided by a 35-foot putt for his par after being trapped in the short eighth, Goodman suddenly became the magnet for a rushing, swirling mob. He gave them a thrill promptly by sinking a 20-foot putt on the tenth green to save his par but then three putted the 11th for the only time he was over par all day.

Revolta Scores 149

Three successive pars, all marked by great driving and cool control around the greens, paved the way for Johnny's next and biggest display of fireworks. He was 25 yards short of the 511 yard 15th when he took out his niblick and sent the ball scurrying to the green. It rolled softly to the pin, nestling against the pole, and dropped in for an eagle three as the referee pulled out the stick. Another par and then the 18th, where Johnny's drive was barely in the rough for the first time. He belted a No. 5 high and straight. For a moment it seemed certain to hit the flag but dropped three feet away, for a final birdie.

Goodman used only 26 putts for his entire round—14 on the first nine and 12 on the last.

Kirkwood's 35-35—70 was the second best round of the day. The trick shot artist, making his strongest bid in ten years for the American open title shot away four strokes from Armour's lead and missed an eight foot putt on the home hole for a chance to tie Tommy.

Not in many years has the main pack been so distanced.

There were only seven players within a seven stroke hailing distance of Goodman, including Armour, Kirkwood, Olin Dutra, then Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis and Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., each with 147, and Mortie Dutra of Detroit and Phil Perkins of Cleveland, each at 148. The group at 149 comprised Runyan, Hagen, Diegel, Mac Smith, Abe Espinosa, Maurice McCarthy, Cleveland amateur, and Johnny Revolta, of Menominee, Mich.

Sarazen, the champion, was almost forgotten in the turmoil created by Goodman. The stocky champion, plainly off his game from the outset, had only the slimmest of outside chances to figure well up in the money, much less to win. He overcame a big deficit last year by coming from behind to win by three shots after being five strokes off the pace at 36 holes, but it would be a miracle for him to repeat under the existing circumstances.

ESCANABA NINE IDLE ON SUNDAY

Menominee Cancels, Says Must Go Through With Marinette Game

The baseball game scheduled for Escanaba at Menominee Sunday was cancelled yesterday by Menominee when the Stateliners reported that they must play at Marinette on that date or else lose their franchise in the league. The Menominee team had offered the date to Escanaba for a game in Menominee previously.

The abrupt cancellation left the Escanaba team without a game for this Sunday. Local fans report that the Menominee-Marinette game has been advertised for some time and are at a loss to understand why Menominee had offered this date to Escanaba, and, having offered it, why they balked at a time too late to permit the local team an opportunity to arrange another game with some other team.

The Escanaba team has got off to a good start, winning a home and home series from Munising in the first two games.

Manager Boyle is anxious to schedule any teams in Wisconsin-Michigan league on open dates or any teams with reputation in Upper Michigan or Wisconsin.

Walter Johnson Signs As Cleveland Manager

Cleveland, June 9 (AP)—A gentleman farmer of Maryland packed his bags tonight and reserved train tickets for Cleveland, where he will become manager of the Indians—Tris Speaker's old ball club.

He is Walter Johnson, the "Big Train," whose arm of steel performed pitching wonders for the Washington Senators through nearly a score of years.

Starts Work Sunday

He is the same Walter, who piloted the Nats through four stirring years from 1929 to 1932 and then tried to quit the game that made his name immortal to American sports fans.

But he could not resist the temptation to return when Billy Evans, the Indians' general manager, gave him a proposition this week. So he signed up today to manage the club the rest of the year and all of next season. He starts work Sunday.

Johnson succeeds Roger Peckinpaugh, an old Washington team mate, whose five-year term here was something of a managerial record in the big leagues.

It was a distinct surprise to the experts as well as the fans this morning when Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland club issued a short statement of the change. Here is part of it:

"It is with regret that the company finds it necessary to change managers x x. For five years every effort has been made to build a winning team x x. Roger Peckinpaugh has worked hard and done everything in his power x x. It is unfortunate x x x."

Those who are baseball wise say Peck had bad breaks. When things started going to pot last month Bradley issued a note of warning: "The management hires a manager, but the public fires him."

"There was talk about a new pilot. The club slipped from first place to fifth. The experts were picking Larry Gilbert of the New Orleans Pelicans, Bibbs Falk, Indian coach, and others. The club's board of directors called one of their frequent meetings. Cleveland was excited.

But none expected Walter Johnson to land the job. Johnson himself was enthusiastic. Reached at his home, he said he hadn't seen a ball game this year.

"But I know the Cleveland club has some good talent and I believe it can be whipped into a winner."

NOT SURPRISED

Boston, June 9 (AP)—Joe Cronin, youthful manager of the Washington Senators, said today he was not surprised that Walter Johnson, his predecessor, had been chosen to manage the Cleveland Indians.

"I felt right along that Barney would bob up somewhere," Cronin said, "for baseball can't afford to let men of his calibre get away. I played under Walter for several years and always found him helpful.

"All that I am I owe to him. And while he's manager of a rival club, I wish him all the success in the world. He richly deserves it."

New York Yankees Win Second Part Of Home Run Race

Philadelphia, June 9 (AP)—The New York Yankees outdid the Athletics in today's section of the home run derby and won a 7 to 6 decision under a sweltering sun.

Tony Lazzeri's tenth four base belt of the season was the deciding blow of the season after Lou Gehrig and Jimmie Foxx had clouted a homer apiece to tie Babe Ruth for the major league lead. Tony's blow came after Ruth and Ben Chapman had drawn passes in the eighth inning.

Gehrig walloped homer No. 12 with two aboard in the first inning to send the Yanks off ahead and Foxx hit his twelfth of the season and fourth in two days with Ed Coleman on base in the seventh to tie the score.

WHITE SOX COP 14-INNING TILT

Chicago Stages Uprising in Ninth to Tie Up Game, Win, 10-9

Chicago, June 9 (AP)—A home run off Art Herring's first pitch in the fourteenth inning by Luke Appling today gave the Chicago White Sox a 10 to 9 victory over Detroit, after they had staged a five run uprising in the ninth to tie the score.

The Tigers went into the last of the ninth boasting a 9 to 4 lead, only to have the Sox drive Charlie Fischer and Elon Hogsett from the mound under the blast that tied the score. Herring and Ted Lyons, fourth Chicago pitcher to work, battled it out until Appling's homer put a story book finish on the game.

Lead Looked Safe

Fred Marberry and Ed Durham were the starting pitchers, the Tiger hurler going out in the seventh, and Durham lasting less than three innings. The victory gave the Sox an even break in the series to date, and broke up a Detroit winning streak at five straight.

Detroit started out with a rush, and led by Walker, who hit a home run in the first inning and scored Owen and Stone ahead of him, built up an early margin. Rogell's triple in the second inning followed by Hayes' wild throw scored another Tiger run in the second.

In the third, Owen doubled and took third on Gehringer's grounder. Stone's single scored him. Then Walker singled to left, and Stone took third. Walker stole second, and Rogell tripled, scoring both men ahead of him.

Detroit held it comfortable six run margin until the fifth frame, when doubles by Berry and Hayes and a single by Swanson brought in two Chicago runs, narrowing the gap.

The Tigers, still apparently safe, added two more runs, but in the ninth Grube, batting for Faber, walked and Haas singled. Swanson singled, scoring Grube and carrying Haas to second. Hogsett went to the hill in Fischer's place, and Appling forced Simmons. Kress walked, filling the bases. Dykes walked, forcing in Swanson. Berry singled, scoring Appling and Kress. At this point Herring replaced Hogsett. Webb, batting for Grube, flied to White to end the inning.

Until the winning run was scored by Appling, there were few hits after the ninth inning and no scoring threats.

Midget Wolgast Loser As He Quits In Detroit Fight

Detroit, June 9 (AP)—Midget Wolgast, New York featherweight recognized in some states as world's champion, walked out of the ring here tonight in the sixth round because he said Britt Gorman, Minneapolis was "butting," and Gorman was awarded a technical knockout decision.

The bout ended after five rounds of spiritless fighting during which both fighters were warned repeatedly to show some earnestness. Wolgast had a bad cut over his right eye which he complained had been inflicted by Gorman's head or shoulder and not his glove. When Wolgast refused to go on with the fight, Referee Elmer (Slim) McClelland ordered him back, but the easterner shook his head and climbed through the ropes.

The bout was scheduled to go ten rounds. Wolgast weighed 117; Gorman 113. Wolgast's title is not recognized in Michigan, although he is regarded as title holder in New York and Pennsylvania.

GAPS IN ROADS TO BE FINISHED

Need of Tourist Lanes Seen by Van Wagoner in Escanaba Visit

A good idea of the extent and possibilities of Michigan's great highway system may be gathered in an airplane trip from Lansing to Escanaba, says Murray D. Van Wagoner, incoming state highway commissioner, who made a "get-acquainted" tour to Escanaba by air Thursday to attend the Upper Peninsula Road Builders' Association meeting. He returned to Lansing Friday morning in a ship piloted by Major Floyd Evans of the state aeronautics department, with E. C. Kneale and Raymond Foley of Lansing as the other passengers.

"While flying up to Escanaba," said Mr. Van Wagoner, "I could not help thinking something of the changes that have taken place in the years since building highways assumed major importance in the affairs of Michigan. In a few hours I travelled from Lansing by air, over territory that has been opened up by the development of a great network of highways—and I was able to observe from the air some of the effect the highway system has had on this state, as well as to observe some of the possibilities that may come from its maintenance and extension in the future."

Stands by Pledges

Questioned regarding his policies when he takes office July 1, the first Democratic highway commissioner of Michigan referred back to the four points of his campaign program, which included the following:

1—No more new roads except necessary connecting links until taxes have been materially reduced.

2—Adequate trunk line maintenance at greatly reduced cost.

3—Drastic reduction of administrative costs.

4—Recommendation of lower auto weight tax with object of seeking reduction without disturbing present level of county refunds.

"I intend to stand on that campaign pledge," said Van Wagoner. "The people have said it is what they want."

"Naturally there will be hundreds of occasions when local needs and demands must be met with an interpretation of that pledge. My interpretation will always be on the side of giving the public the best possible returns for the money. That will not mean political roads. It will not mean currying local favor—but intelligent, honest and efficient efforts to do the job best for the most people at the least practical cost."

Must Complete "Links"

"Here in Upper Michigan you are especially interested in the development of the tourist business. In the campaign I spoke often of "badly needed connecting links in the highway system." I defined that term as including gaps in the great tourist lanes in both peninsulas. Those gaps, I still contend, should have been filled long ago, when millions were available for highway construction, rather than some of the roads that were built. However, the gaps are still there and they should be completed. I have given much study to the tourist question. I have planned to have the highway department, under my administration, pay a great deal more attention to it than has been the case in the past. I hope to bring about a closer co-relation of the activities of state departments in that connection. Up to now the second largest industry in Michigan has not had, I believe, all the benefits that might result from the expenditures and activities of state departments. I am keenly interested and propose to do all I can in that direction consistent with conditions."

Mr. Van Wagoner said he was pleased with the cordial reception given him at Escanaba, and promised another visit in the near future in his official capacity as state highway commissioner.
